My Visit to Salford Museum and Art Gallery

When I arrive, I might go up these steps...

...or up this ramp!

Here is a sensory map of the Ground Floor.

The Louder and Quieter areas are a rough guide only - please call in advance if you would like to be advised of quieter times.

1 Lark Hill Place

Dressing

up

Louder areas

Quieter areas

Things to touch

Smells

Dark

Here is a sensory map of the First Floor.

Louder areas

Quieter areas

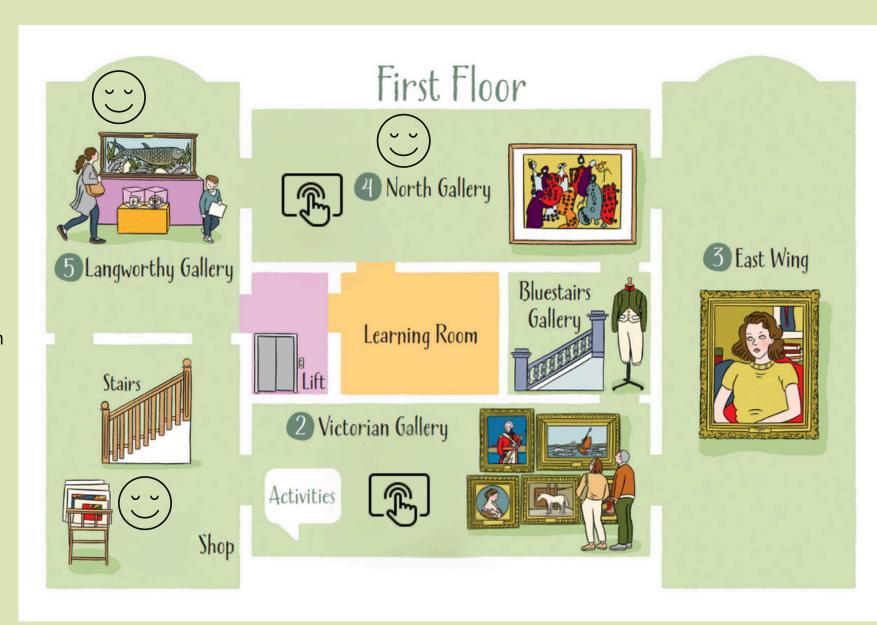

Things to touch

Smells

Dark

I might meet a member of the team:

Wearing a fleece...

...or a lanyard.

The first room I will see is the Reception.

There are members of staff who are there to help me. I can ask them any questions.

There is a gift shop and a café in this area.

There might be some noise, so if I need some quiet, I can ask a member of staff.

I can borrow a sensory bag from reception.

In my bag I will find:

- Ear protectors
- Coloured paddles
- Fox toy
- A Jacobs Ladder
- A cup and ball
- A torch
- A mirror
- A scarf

These are the shared toilets, they are near reception. There could be noise from the handdryers.

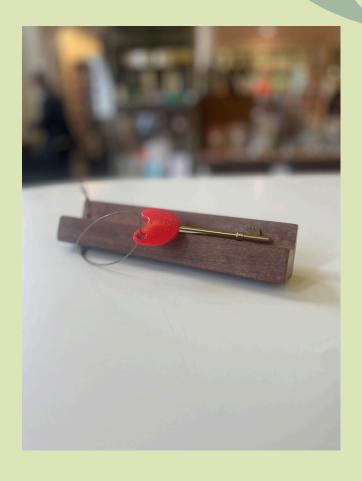

All the toilets have paper towels.

This is the accessible toilet. It is quieter.

If I want to use this toilet, I need to get the key from reception.

I can use the lift if I need to. It's opposite the accessible toilet.

What might I like to see?

Some sculptures and paintings in the Victorian Gallery, or...

...an exhibition in the East Wing, or...

...a Victorian Street.

This is the Victorian Gallery.

I can touch the statues.

I can do some drawing while I look at the paintings.
I can play with things in the Activity Truck.

This is the North Gallery.

This room is usually quieter.

Here, there are different exhibitions that change every few months. There are also some vases I can look at and some tiles I can touch. These are always there.

This is the Langworthy Gallery.

This room is usually quieter.

The exhibitions in here change, so I might see something different to this picture. I can do some drawing here and look out the window at Peel Park.

This is the East Wing.

This room sometimes has sounds playing.

The exhibitions in here change, so I might see something different to the picture.

This is Lark Hill Place.

There are clothes to try on!

And lanterns to borrow.

It is a recreation of a Victorian Street in Salford. It might be a bit dark in here, and a little colder.

There are lots of things to see and hear, and I can look through the shop windows.

I can go to Peel Park if I'd like to be outside.

It is behind the museum.

The team at Salford Museum and Art Gallery hope I had fun!

